MD TAMS MEETING FOLLOWS AT 1:00 P.M.

HOPE TO SEE YOU THERE!....

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Another fine Maryland TAMS Swap Meet is now on record. My thanks go to all the members who attended, either as buyers, traders or dealers, with a special nod of recognition to Jan Pugliese for keeping everyone fed at the "McTAMS" food concession. I expect to see a lot more of you at next year's swap meet.

Our late fall meeting at the Suburban Washington/Baltimore Coin Show was highlighted by Greg Ruby's talk about exnumia hunting at the 1993 ANA Convention (you know where that will be) and by the announcement that Pete Burris, our Numismatist of the Year nominee, won the MANA Alex Kaptik Award for the middle Atlantic region. CONGRATULATIONS, PETE, on an award well deserved!

The yearly roving winter meeting will be held on Saturday, January 23 at the Baltimore County Historical Society (see map elsewhere in this issue). The meeting will begin at 1:00 p.m., but a tour of the Society's museum is set for 11:00 a.m. for Maryland TAMS members at a cost of $2.00 per person. If you wish to take the tour, please let me know at 410-747-3973 by January 8 so I may tell the BCHS how many visitors to expect for the tour. Hope to see many of you there.

At our next annual meeting, later in 1993, there will be an election of the Maryland TAMS officers to serve for the next two years. All Board of Directors' positions will be open - I am not seeking reelection as president - so member volunteers are much needed. If you are willing to serve, please contact election committee chairman, Jim Boswell. Your helpfulness in keeping the society running will be much appreciated.

Best wishes to all of you for a fine holiday season and good token and medal collecting for 1993.

BRYCE DOXZON

FROM THE EDITOR

HOLIDAY TIME ONCE AGAIN...and I must admit one of my favorite times of the year. And not too far behind THANKSGIVING which is also one of my favorites.. (I've got lots of favorites). But no matter what the occasion we in MD TAMS have a lot to be thankful for... and I as your editor have a lot of great articles in my files from YOU just waiting to hit the pages of the JOURNAL. So thanks to all of you who have contributed to these pages throughout this past year. And for 1993... just keep them coming as those articles are what make your Journal an anticipated event in members lives.

But MD TAMS is so much more than just a Journal... I think the fellowship which we enjoy is our greatest asset. Can you believe I've received six copies of the recent article from The Sun (Dec.1, 92) on "Rare tokens found at Shore cannery were used to pay workers decades ago". In this article R. Lee Burton (MD TAMS man) is quoted as well as Russell W. Sears Jr. also a MD TAMS man! I'm surprised that they didn't quote MD TAMS man Jim Boswell who lays special claim to being one of our resident experts on farm and cannery tokens. Nor did they mention our own founder, Mr. MD Tokens himself... Mill Hajek. But the article was interesting enough so I decided to reprint it in this issue of the Journal... just so everybody will know what I'm talking about. By the way I'm also told that the S.E.W. Friel cannery tokens were not rare even before this great discovery. Where is Bill Miller when we really need him? (He'll probably show up at the next meeting with all 250 tokens and the wooden box to boot... sure would make an interesting auction item...

I guess this is one of the exciting aspects of our great hobby. Tokens are still turning up not exactly all over the place, but here and an occasionally there... which is exciting enough at my age!... I remember, not too long ago when a lady brought some pickers' checks into the Anne Arundel County Historical Society... "How many do you have?" we asked. "a lot!" was the answer. We counted over 4000 tokens from the one farmer... now that's a lot of strawberries, peas and beans!

Exciting stuff these..our tokens...what fun and what a great Society... Thanks for all your help and have A VERY HAPPY HOLIDAY and a GREAT NEW YEAR.....

MINUTES OF MD TAMS MEETING

JUNE 20, 1992

The annual meeting of MD TAMS was called to order on Saturday, June 20 at 12:05 by President Bryce Doxzen at Festival Hall in conjunction with the MSNA show. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and approved. Treasurer Pete Burris indicated that donations for our book fund were received as a result of the letter enclosed with the annual dues request. Among the usual correspondence, VP Greg Ruby announced that a form for our nominee for Numismatist of the Year was received. Will Mumford, speaking for the JOURNAL, apologized for the delay in this issue, due to a broken typewriter. He is looking for new sources. He was given a vote of confidence for a job well-done.

In old business, Pete Burris showed a letter received from a collector in Germany to whom he had sent a book. Enclosed was $45 in cash for its payment. Pete indicated that members have donated books to 16 libraries in Maryland and commended Jim Boswell for originating that idea. As there are many continuing series in specific areas of tokens, members are requested to send any new listings to the following people:

Woods - Ed Craig

Encased - Bill Miller

Pickers checks - Will Mumford

Unlisteds - Jan Pugliese

However, Jan indicated that she will accept ALL Maryland unlisteds and distribute the items to their proper classifiers. Pete Burris noted the number of members who had not yet paid dues, stating that continued tardiness might result in the discontinuation of the JOURNAL to that member.

In new Business, Pete Burris was nominated as the club's Numismatist of the Year. Will Mumford addressed a request that our JOURNAL print an ad from another club gratis in exchange for our club's ad in that magazine. It was moved and seconded that our club accept a written request for a free ad from another bona fide club, to be published at the discretion of the JOURNAL editor and based upon reciprocity of the club requesting publication. The motion carried. Bob Ruby presented a 1992 Hampstead medal to the MD TAMS cabinet. Other medals are available for purchase at $4. Pete Burris announced his retirement as club Treasurer at the end of this term and suggested that members begin to think of his replacement. Jan Pugliese announced that the second annual Swap Meet is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 19 or 26 at the Emanuel Methodist Church in Catonsville. As this event is not intended to be a "show," the meet will again be "members only" but, of course, may include spouses and children. It was felt that if a person was sincerely interested in MD tokens and medals, he/she could join our organization at our bargain price, receive the JOURNAL (a outstanding publication), and attend the Meet. All members are eligible to participate either by requesting a free table or by simply attending and browsing. Let's repeat last year's success. Bill Lenz, General Chairman of the ANA '93 show, discussed the tokens and medals available for both the '92 and '93 shows. He is still looking for an Activities chairman for the '93 Baltimore convention.

As this is the annual meeting, Ron Ward, Chairman of the Literary Committee, presented the following awards for JOURNAL articles: Individual Article - 1st: Mil Hajek, 2nd: Russ Sears; Series - 1st: Mil Hajek, 2nd: Curt Judge. As an annual giveaway, Greg Ruby presented members with numbered "charge cards" and offered "error" varieties at $1.5 each. Mil Hajek gave elongateds made by Ray Dillard and also one made for Dot and Mil. He also had for sale elongateds of Cal Ripkin and Camden Yards. The meeting was adjourned at 12:55 p.m. and a club auction followed.

Respectfully submitted,
Jan Pugliese, Secretary

ELONGATEDS OF MARYLAND A CATALOGING EFFORT

BY MILLARD W. HAJEK LM # 1

Probably one of the most prolific issuers of elongateds in MD TAMS is our prominent member, Jack Pryor. Most of Jack's issues commemorate events that occurred on September 17th, which just happens to be Jack's birthdate. So, if you discover any worthy events that happened on September 17th, please let Jack Pryor know about it and I'm sure we'll see an elongated issued by Jack for that historic occasion.

Following is a current listing of elongateds issued by Jack Pryor.

THE LIBERTY ENGINE-HOUSE LOTTERY

BY: RUSS SEARS

Prior to 1858 when Baltimore instituted a paid Fire Department, there were various independent fire companies in the city. One of the independents was the Liberty Fire Company.

Organized in 1794, the Liberty Fire Company was chartered on February 11, 1818 with William Jessop as its incorporator. Revolutionary War hero John Eager Howard conveyed a lot of land, triangular in shape at the intersection of Liberty Street, Park Avenue, and Fayette Street for the engine house.

In 1810, a lottery was proposed to raise money for the fire engine house. Directors of the lottery were William Jessop, George Decker (whose signature appears on the lottery ticket), Abram Denmead, James Thompson, J. Lewis Wampler, and George Wall. Tickets were sold by G. & R. Waite's Lottery Office which was located at the corner of St. Paul's Lane (now St. Paul Street) and Market Street (now Baltimore Street). The lottery proved to be successful, with profits exceeding $ 6,000.

UNIONS & THE LABOR LYCEUM

Baltimore, at the turn of the century, was known as a "blue collar" town where the city's industries employed one out of every four citizens. Most of them toiled as laborers or operated plant machinery, but a small group were Baltimore's craft workers. These craft workers won Baltimore a reputation as a producer of a rich array of industrial goods.

Laborers did the hauling, lifting, loading and digging to build a rapidly expanding Baltimore. Plant workers toiled at repetitive assembly-line chores. Craft workers made whole products or parts of products. Apparel craft workers made coats, dresses, pants, overalls, garment pockets and buttonholes. Metal workers crafted iron molding, machine parts and boilers. Those working in food industries made cans, meats, bread and beer. Construction workers produced bricks, cut stones, doors and floors. Publishing employed craft workers who made newsprint, printing plates and bound books. No one trade ever seemed to dominate the rest.

They valued education and self-improvement, as well as service for the greater good of the craft family, community and country. At the same time, they believed in joint efforts through unions to protect craft work and to educate workers. Craft workers counted on unions to struggle against the reforms to labor offered by management. They gathered in halls and rented rooms to devise their strategies. Thus, the proliferation of union locals and the halls where they met.

The LABOR LYCEUM, also known as Carroll Hall, located in the 1000 block of East Baltimore Street was home to the garment workers at the turn of the century (circa 1900's). Today, it is used as a warehouse. Tokens for the LABOR LYCEUM are listed in our Maryland Merchant Tokens book numbers S60-L5a and S60-L5b and are illustrated below along with a picture of the hall. Also shown are two other union related tokens; Composition Roofers (S60-C185) and Lithographers Local (S60-L135).

Rare tokens found at Shore cannery were used to pay workers decades ago

REPRINTED FROM THE BALTIMORE SUN - Tuesday, December 1, 1992

By William Thompson
Staff Writer

QUEENSTOWN — In a dark and dusty corner of a storeroom, employees at the S.E.W. Friel cannery here recently discovered a wooden box filled with reminders that the lowly tomato was once king on the Eastern Shore.

Inside the box were thousands of rare, brass tokens that were used during the first half of the century to pay cannery workers for skinning tomatoes and other vegetables.

In the years just after World War I, there were 250 canneries on the Eastern Shore, according to R. Lee Burton Jr., a Cambridge man who wrote a book about the subject. And during the next several decades, as many as 500 canneries operated at one time or another on the Shore.

Partly because they did not want to have large amounts of cash on hand, cannery owners issued their own scrip that workers could spend at local stores or exchange for U.S. currency at the end of the week.

Skinner were paid a token — usually worth a few cents — for every bucket of tomatoes they peeled. They could exchange tokens of small denominations for brass coins of higher value. "A good peeler could do 100 buckets a day," said Mr. Burton. There may have been as many as 2,000 different kinds of tokens on the Eastern Shore through the years, he said.

Tokens were made of brass, aluminum or, in some instances, red fabric "which showed the canner was really a cheapskate," he said.

The practice of paying in tokens ended in the early 1950s with passage of federal wage and hour laws.

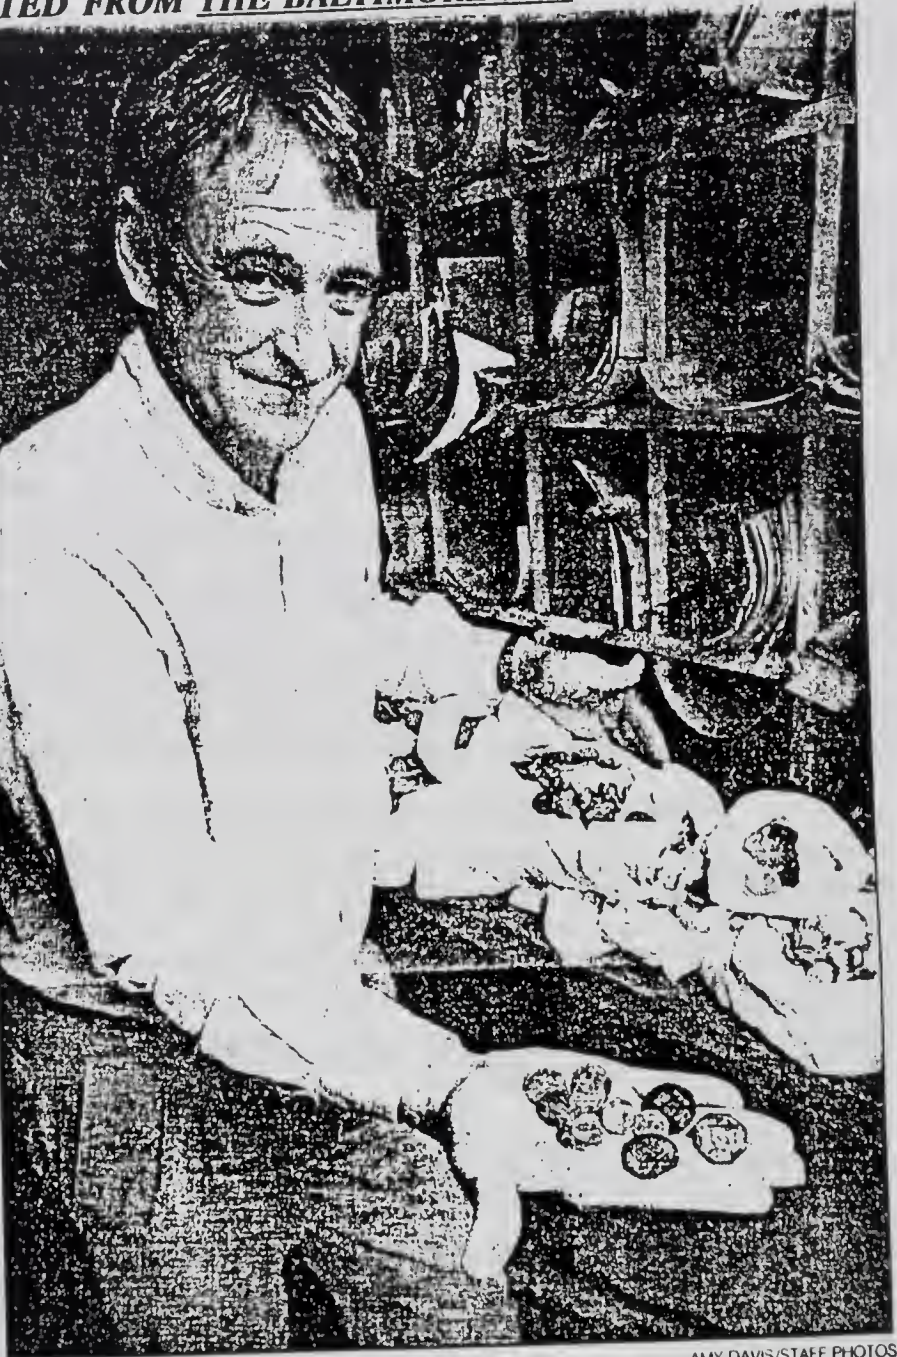

When the cost of old and rare silver coins rose abruptly in the 1960s, some numismatists turned to collecting the brass cannery tokens.

"In most instances, though, they were thrown away" as canneries closed, said Mr. Burton. "Every now and then someone finds a bunch of them." The tokens found at Friel were almost discarded because workers did not know what they were, said Keith E. Wolfe, a company official. But word of the discovery reached Sam Friel, the 83-year-old company head, who saved them from the trash bin.

"I knew they were there," said Mr. Friel. "I didn't have any idea people had any use for them."

Collectors are already scrambling to get some of the Friel coins, which bear the company's initials on one side and the value on the other.

"They're definitely collectors' items," said Dennis Zembala, director of the Baltimore Museum of Industrial. But a token collector in the Baltimore area, Russell W. Sears Jr., said the monetary value of the find may be diminished by its size.

"When there's a large quantity of them, they're worth cents each," Mr. Sears said, contrasting them to one-of-a-kind brass, minted cannery tokens, imprinted with a company name and location, that could command a price of $50 to $100.

When a coin is unique, he said, it "means all the others were dumped in the river or down the well."

Mr. Zembala said the significance of the tokens is that they represent an era when workers were paid only for what they produced.

"That doesn't happen anymore," he said.

A worker received a token for every bucket of tomatoes peeled.

MARYLAND MAVERICKS

by Jim Boswell, LM #21

Editor's Note: The column "MARYLAND MAVERICKS" last appeared in our Journal in Vol. VI, NO. 1, Spring 1985. Since then, many more Maryland mavericks (MM) have appeared on the token scene. MD TAMS LM #21, Jim Boswell has "volunteered" to be our new mavericks editor. However before accepting any new listings for publication, he has decided to re-print all previously listed MM's so that all members can help identify them. And now from the real Jim Boswell:
